Diversity Bingo

Objective
- To help participants see how much (or how little) diversity is in their group.
- To assist participants in examining elements of diversity that are obvious (e.g., red hair) or not obvious (e.g., gay, lesbian or bisexual).
This can be a fun and enlightening activity to do in the group and is also an excellent one to do paired with another small group.

Time
10-15 minutes (or longer, depending upon discussion)

Materials
- Diversity Bingo worksheets
- pencils/pens
- small prizes (candy, etc.)

Procedure
1. Give a copy of the “Diversity Bingo” worksheet to each participant. Ask them to circulate in the room and get people to sign various descriptions that apply to them.

2. Spend a few minutes with students working through the game. It’s entirely possible no one will get a “Bingo”, especially if the group is homogeneous or members don’t feel comfortable asking about or identifying with any of the characteristics.

3. Some discussion topics:
   - What perceptions and assumptions were made?
   - How did you perceive others?
   - What assumptions did you make about other people?
   - How were you perceived by others?
   - What assumptions were made about you?
   - Which blocks were the easiest to fill?
   - Were there characteristics about which you hesitated asking? Why?
   - What other categories could have been included?

You might notice a level of nervousness about certain categories (e.g., sexual orientation, disabilities, etc.), and this may be a good way to introduce discussion on those topics.

Valuing Diversity

Be aware. Broaden your general knowledge of groups and cultures.
Include others. Have a variety of people involved in your groups and activities.
Never assume! Ask questions, listen carefully, and check understanding.
Have respect. Treat all people fairly, honestly and with positive regard.
Openly communicate. Share information, expectations and unwritten rules with everyone.
